

TWELVE SEA POEMS

fragmentary text works

strangely after
all gloaming
force
immense the
flood
of passionate
speech

wind heard familiar
that of rigging children

successiv
e beings'
nights
see minutes
past four
admitted
into
the dark
waters

thinking

great curiosity
country from ignorance

dark married strange
know nothing
the foot of the sky

moment of
space outlines
defends it
from the sea

fields, hollows,
rises;

escaped beyond undergoing
-lar isolated cloud, uneasiness

regained and rudder

venturesome
tinuity
perceives
indistinct
his eyes;
(the object)
the river and
the bank

from sleeping, flew
variations
from the meeting every
departure
with sole survivors

the ship quivering to its freighted perceptible
soon discovered
impossible to conceive
cotton-wool pack-thread
shock of the water

wondered undiscovered repulsion boom! an awful seasickness past to perish mysteriously at sea outside to

vanishing-
point
and
into
slatey
sky

immense pres- destruction
came midnight jaggeree
on deck
a narrow strip of vapour

found myself awhile beneath spread shattered
spiral exhalations
were drifting in
copper-fastened imagination, finally righted

TEXTS

BORGES, JORGE LUIS.
“A New Refutation of
Time”. Labyrinths. 1964.

CONRAD, JOSEPH.
“Amy Foster”. *The Nigger of
the ‘Narcissus’/Typhoon/And Other Stories*. 1903/1963.

POE, EDGAR ALLAN.
“Manuscript Found in a Bottle”. *The Murders in the Rue Morgue and Other
Tales*. 2012

collaged by Jay Drinkall

second digital edition, 2017 print edition first published in 2014

Twelve Sea Poems is licensed under CC BY-NC-SA 3.0